Climate:

Dry warm summers. In the winter it can sometimes be very cold with at times a lot of winter snowfall. The nearby mountains regularize the temperatures and bring coolness in the summer and keep the soil warmer in the winter.

Soil:

A total of 17 ha of vineyard formed by a series of hills with a minimum height of 300m. Located in the Vardar Valley. Southern exposition. Poor sandy soils with limestone in the substrate and rolled boulders in the upper layer.

Vinification:

This estate bottled Syrah wine is marked with a touch of excellence resulting from the double crop reduction, which leads to a partial dehydration of the grapes on the vines, but also from the presence of 8% of Vranec grapes. These steps enable obtaining a phenologically ripe wine. The complexity of this wine comes from the 20-month ageing in new American and French oak barrels.
